

Reporting from Group 1

Planning

- NBSAPs play a key role
- NBSAPs must be aligned with the content of the post-2020 framework, essential that the NBSAPs respond to the content of the post-2020 framework
- There is a need for coherence among NBSAPs, with common indicators
 - Different options on the table: guidance to allow for flexibility, guidelines, standardized format

Reporting

- National reports must be consistent with NBSAPs
- All national reports should contain common elements to enable for aggregation, and allow for an assessment of progress made against the achievement of the post-2020 framework.
 - Different options on the table: guidance, guidelines, common elements
- Timing of reporting
 - National reports must be synchronized to then feed the global assessment of progress during the global stocktake
 - The reporting process under the CBD should be aligned with other reporting processes under other Conventions to facilitate synergies
 - There should be two cycles of reporting, two reporting “moments”, during the ten-year period of the framework.
 - Proposals: reporting for specific targets with a specific frequency, inclusion of additional content in the reports, such as success stories

Monitoring and Review

- Review is a crucial element of an enhanced implementation framework. The COP14 decision already gives some details on review.
- There would be a nationally focused review process, building on the voluntary peer review. It would require adequate resources.
- There would be a global review process, which would be mandatory and facilitative.
- Non-Party stakeholders, including sectors and civil society, should be included in the review
- The global review would inform a global stocktake, to assess progress in implementing the post-2020 framework

Additional proposals and ideas

- Having the same “structure” in the framework, NBSAPs and national reports
- Involvement of NPS including civil society and sectors across the different phases of implementation
- Disaggregation of global goals so that NPS can quantify their contribution to the implementation of the framework
- Due to time constraints, did not have the time to talk about what comes after the monitoring and review to accelerate implementation
