International Day for Biological Diversity 2016

The International Council for Game and Wildlife Conservation (CIC) is an active, global leader in promoting sustainable use and biodiversity conservation. The hunting community is, in fact, a strong ally in achieving the "mainstreaming of biodiversity" through the wise use of natural resources, including wildlife. The CIC, among many other international organizations, believes that the strict preservation of wildlife is not the way to sustain biodiversity nor support the sustainable development of communities and livelihoods in the long-term. Our vision is "A world that values and supports sustainable hunting for the benefit of people and nature."
